National Voters Day celebrated in city

26,782 new voters enrol amidst COVID

Election Commission of India launches digital voter ID cards

New voters displaying their ID cards during National Voters Day in city this morning.

Mysuru, Jan. 25 (PM&BCT)- Over 26,782 new voters have been added to the voters list of Mysuru city in 2020. This number has been achieved despite lockdown and COVID-19 pandemic, said MCC Commissioner Gurudatta Hegde. Efforts will be made to add more voters, he said and appealed to all 18-year-olds to enrol.

He was speaking at National Voters Day programme organised by MCC, District Administration and Zilla Panchayat at Town Hall here this morning. Many new voters were enrolled with the help of technology. Of the 26,782 new voters, 2,597 are physically challenged, he added.

The National Voters Day (NVD) is celebrated on Jan. 25 every year since 2011, to mark the Foundation Day of Election Commission of India on Jan. 25, 1950. The main purpose of the celebrations is to encourage, facilitate and maximise enrolment, especially for new voters. This year's theme of NVD is 'Making our voters empowered, vigilant, safe and informed.'

Addressing the gathering after inaugurating the event, Principal District and Sessions Court Judge Ramachandra D. Huddar regretted that most voters do not exercise their democratic right.

"We see a voting percentage of 40 to 50 percent in every election. 100 percent voting leads to good governance and good nation-building activity," he said calling upon the urban and rural citizens to come out and vote in large numbers.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose was anything but sectarian in his views. The landmark Indian National Army trial in November 1945, which catalysed patriotic fervour, had Hindu, Muslim and Sikh soldiers facing the charge of treason. It's important to keep in mind that the positions adopted by many stalwarts belonged to an era guided by goals and constraints far removed from what India faces today. Any policy position that Governments adopt today must be defended in a contemporary context. Invoking the rhetoric of a bygone age isn't adequate to justify or reject policies in contemporary India. Context matters and trade-offs faced by leaders change over time. All of this is relevant in the context of political campaigning in Bengal ahead of the Assembly elections. The campaigning has been characterised by an appeal to emotions. None of the contenders appear keen on discussing substantive issues. This is unfortunate, because till the early 1980s Bengal was one of India's most industrialised States. It's also known as the home of the Bengal Renaissance. If India is to transition to rapid economic growth, Bengal has to be integral to the effort. If political parties want to honour Bose's legacy, they should channel campaigning towards issues relevant to the State's future.

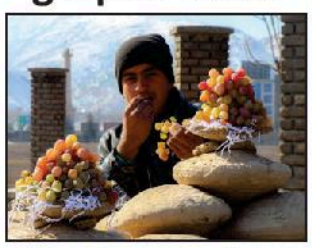
Use Gangina method to keep grapes fresh



Kabul: Grapes are tricky to keep fresh for long periods of time, even when refrigeration is available, but apparently Afghans have long been using an ancient method of keeping the soft fruits fresh for consumption in the winter months, when fresh fruits are otherwise hard to come by.

Called Gangina, this ingenious conservation technique involves sealing healthy grapes in a saucer-like container made of two layers of wet soil. The container is left in the sun to dry and then has to be kept in a cool place, away from direct sunlight. If stored properly, gangina containers can keep grapes picked in autumn fresh until next year's spring season.

Gangina containers need to be air-tight and kept in a cool, dark place, to keep the fruits inside fresh. In winter or in spring, when the demand for fruits grows and with it the price people are willing to pay, stock of gangina-kept grapes are brought out and sold for profit. Each container holds about a kilogram of grapes.

Gin made from distilled elephant dung

Cape Town: Do you believe that elephant dung is the main ingredient of a premium spirit drink? Yes, it's true. South African gin Indlovu is made with botanicals harvested from the pachyderm poop.

Paula and Les Ansley, both former Professors in different fields of biology, decided to move from the UK to South Africa, after retiring and come up with a way to contribute to conservation efforts in the region and support the local community. Neither of them had any idea that elephant dung would play such a big part in their plan, it just sort of happened. Today they run a distillery that uses "botanicals foraged by elephants" and harvested from their poop to create Indlovu gin, a unique spirit that doesn't taste anything like you'd imagine.

Echo of Shivamogga blast; Explosives seized in Mandya

Mandya, Jan. 25 (MR&BCT)- Close on the heels of a blast at a stone quarry caused by a truck-load of gelatine in Shivamogga district in which six people died last week, the Mandya District Administration has seized explosives and seized vehicles used for quarrying.

Residents in several parts of Mandya, particularly around the Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) Dam, had voiced concerns about illegal quarrying in their areas and nothing concrete had been done so far to end illegal quarrying.

Mining activity is rampant at Baby Betta Kaval, Baby Betta Amruth Mahal Reserve Area, Bannangadi, Chinakurali, Anaganahalli, Kannambadi, Honaganahalli, Bastipura, Beechanakuppe, Avverahalli and surrounding areas in Mandya and Pandavapura. In the latest crackdown, the Police have recovered 350 detonators in Arakere and 16 gelatine sticks and 18 detonators in Bellur.

The raids and seizure of explosives came after Mandya DC M.V. Venkatesh visited Baby Betta on Friday. After the DC's visit, teams of Taluk Administration officials and the Police inspected illegal stone crushers in different parts of Nagamangala and Srirangapatna on Saturday.

Most of the villages are within a radius of 4-8 kms of the KRS Dam and stand on the same rocky platform as the Reservoir. The quarries use high-intensity explosives to break the rocks and this has been causing the earth to shake due to impact. Some of these quarries are operating illegally in the reserve forests.

Superintendent of Police K. Parashuram said that inspection of stone-crushing units will continue over the next few days. A few vehicles were seized in Baby Betta when the Police raided the place recently. Officials of the Taluk Administration, Department of Mines and Geology and the Police are keeping an eye on mining activity in the district to check illegal quarrying, the SP added.

A warning: MP

Mandya MP Sumalatha Ambarish tweeted that the incident in Shivamogga was a warning to residents in Mandya. "The Administration and Police in Mandya have initiated action against illegal mining. I have constantly pursued efforts at curbing them and voiced my concern in Parliament also," she tweeted.

"Most times it is unfortunately done in connivance with local politicians and a few corrupt Government authorities. I urge the Government to take immediate action and give strict instructions to all District Administration officials to take action against all illegal mining activities," she tweeted.

Mining around KRS Dam draws CM's attention

Shivamogga, Jan. 25 (UNI)- Karnataka Chief Minister B.S. Yediyurappa yesterday instructed the Deputy Commissioners (DCs) of respective districts to take immediate steps to stop illegal mining across the State.

Speaking to newsmen at the helipad before returning to the State Capital, he said that henceforth DCs concerned will be held responsible for the illegal mining. "I have not said that illegal mining will be regularised Those into mining have to seek permission with all the relevant documents. The officials concerned will inspect the spot and take further action as per the law. Illegal activities will not be entertained," he said.

He said the mining is going on at Baby Betta near KRS Reservoir and it will damage the Dam. This is going on despite warning to stop several times, he regretted. He directed Mandya DC to take serious note on this issue and stop mining in and round KRS Dam.

Though gravel is needed for infrastructure projects, quarrying should be within the framework of law. "When so many National Highways, road construction and PWD works are on, gravel is needed. There is no problem in quarrying gravel within the framework of law but our objective is to stop illegal quarrying," Yediyurappa said.

NGOs running Children Care Homes must maintain all necessary documents

Mysuru, Jan. 25- The Department of Women and Child Development Deputy Director K. Padma has urged all Non-Government Organisations (NGOs) running Children Care Homes to provide all necessary documents and complete the registration process.

Speaking after inaugurating a one-day training programme for registered Children Care Homes on the topic 'Documents and forms to be furnished by Children Care Homes, under Section 77 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 and Act 2016' in city recently, she urged all NGOs to maintain all necessary documents enlisted according to the Act. The day-long training programme was organised by District Administration in association with Zilla Panchayat, Department of Women and Child Development and District Child Protection Unit at Ideal Jawa Rotary Centre on JLB Road here.

"You might think that the Act is applicable to only Government institutions and not NGOs, which is not true. The Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 is applicable to all Government as well as NGOs running Children Care Homes. They must provide all necessary documents to complete the registration process," she said.

District Child Protection Officer Dr. S. Diwakar was the resource person.

Install rainwater harvesting system, avail 10 percent rebate in water bills

Mysuru, Jan. 25 (BCT)- As part of its efforts to save precious water and promote rainwater harvesting, the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) has announced that it will give 10 percent discount in water bills from Feb. 1 if rainwater harvesting systems are installed in households.

Consumers will get a rebate on the actual bill if they submit details of rainwater harvesting to the MCC authorities in the prescribed format. In a press release, the MCC has said that the 10 percent discount is applicable not only to domestic connections but also to non-domestic, commercial and industrial connections.

The rebate is applicable to those who have already installed the system. Those who do not have the system can install it if they wish to get the rebate every month from Feb. 1 onwards, the MCC has stated.

However, the civic body has clarified that the rebate is valid on the water consumed and the discount will not apply to the underground drainage cess collected as part of the bill.

Consumers have to get their rainwater systems certified from the Executive Engineer of the MCC once a year so as to get the rebate every year without any break. The engineer will visit their houses to authenticate and certify the rainwater harvesting process.

Applications can be downloaded from MCC website http://mysurucity.mrc.gov.in/en/forms and duly filled in forms along with all necessary documents can be submitted to the office of Vani Vilas Water Works at Yadavagiri.

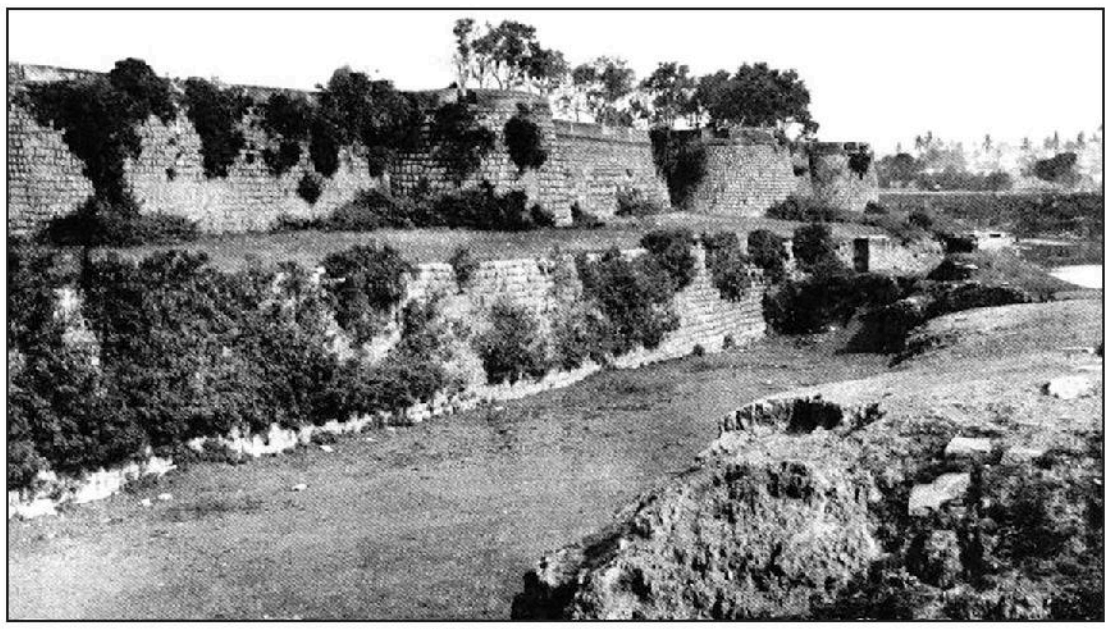
Great British Mutiny

The revolt that took many lives

In my previous article on the De Havilland Arch of Srirangapatna (Star of Mysore dated Dec. 20, 2020), I had mentioned about this engineer's association with the 1810 mutiny in protest against the appalling conditions of the Army in Mysore, resulting in his dismissal from service and subsequent reinstatement in 1812. Readers of this article might have wondered what this mutiny is all about where a British engineer was associated with and what were the appalling conditions.



Srirangapatna Fort Wall.

Lt. Gen. Hay McDowall

Mutiny of the Army in Mysore

Last year, I wrote an article on this mutiny in a national newspaper under the title 'The Bloody Great White Mutiny', where I had written about the historic revolt at Srirangapatna which resulted in dismissal of several British army men and ghastly death of several hundred sepoys in the ditches of Srirangapatna.

This mutiny has great significance because it was a revolt by the British sepoys against their superior officers. They disobeyed the orders of their officers and marched to the capital to lay siege. It was a mutiny not only in and around Srirangapatna but even in other parts of the country.

If it had escalated further, it would have had the serious effect of toppling the very British rule in India. However, it was crushed before it could blow up further. What would have been a major threat to the British rule in India fizzled out because of the ruthless hand with which it was put down.

In the colonial history of India, perhaps this is the only revolt by the British sepoys against their superiors. May be because of this reason, this revolt did not receive the importance it should have got by the then historians who were recording the history of that period. However, it is a significant incident in the British history of India.

A revolt soon after IV Mysore War

Another significant aspect of this revolt was that it arose just a decade after the defeat and death of Tipu Sultan and the resultant fall of Srirangapatna in the 1799 Fourth Mysore War. The revolt plunged the entire South India in turmoil for three months. It covered a wide area of three strategic forts — Machilipatnam, Hyderabad and Srirangapatna. The origin of this major outburst was not Srirangapatna, but the headquarters of the then Madras Presidency, Madras. It was a protest against the highest British authority of South India — the Governor of Madras.

Trouble began to brew soon after the appointment of George Barlow as the Governor of Madras in 1807. After his appointment, George Barlow took some actions in the name of economy which were resented by many in the Army, including the Madras officers. Suspending officers without trial and seizing the powers of the Commander-in-Chief at Fort St. George further aggravated the situation. It affected discipline in the army and gave room for discontent.

Sir George Barlow

Room for discontent

Two particular issues caused great dissatisfaction among the juniors in the Madras army. One was not complying with the demand for equalisation of allowance in Madras on par with Bengal and the other was abolition of the rent allowance granted to commanding officers.

The previous Governor and the Commander-in-Chief of Madras had recommended equalisation of allowance in Madras on par with the officers of Bengal, where it was higher, and abolition of the tent allowance which was granted to commanding officers of regiments in 1802.

These recommendations were, however, ignored by Barlow. Tent allowance provided the officers in command of regiments with a fixed monthly allowance for transport and camp equipage. Now, they had to forego this allowance.

Lack of representation

Another major blow by the Governor was leaving out the Commander-in-Chief from the Council. This action deprived the officers of a representative in the Council Board to air their grievances. These repulsive actions of Barlow were resented by the army men, including some officers of Madras.

Commander-in-Chief Lt. Gen. Hay McDowall gave an impetus to the revolt. His disenchantment with Government was because of the decision to deny him a seat in the Madras Council, a position accorded to every previous commander of the Madras army. Upset over this, the Commander-in-Chief committed 'open sedition and sent forth an inflammatory appeal from the acts of Government.'

Initially, trouble arose at Cochin. But, it was put down by Barlow. However, it cost 140 lives. Then the first act of open defiance came from the Company's European regiment in the garrisons of Machilipatnam in May 1809. Two dozen European officers seized the fort and arrested the commanding officer. They over-powered the guards of the treasury and took away whatever they found inside. This was followed by a similar mutiny at Srirangapatna, while the officers of Hyderabad threatened to march to Madras to seize the Government.

Digital voter ID cards from today: How to download?

New Delhi, Jan. 25 (UNI& Agencies)- The Election Commission of India (ECI) today formally launched the Electronic Electoral Photo Identity Card (e-EPIC) initiative, coinciding with the National Voters Day. Voters in India can make use of this new digital option for the five upcoming State elections.

The e-EPIC is a secure Portable Document Format (PDF) version of the EPIC which can be downloaded on mobile or in a self-printable form on the computer. A voter can store the card on his/her mobile, upload it as a PDF on Digilocker or print it and self-laminate it. This is in addition to the physical EPIC being issued currently.

This will be the first time that the Government will issue voter identity cards in digital formats. Other identity proofs like the Aadhaar card, PAN card, Driving Licence are already available in the digital format.

President Ram Nath Kovind was scheduled to virtually inaugurate the event in New Delhi. ECI's web radio: 'Hello Voters' will also be launched today.

1) The e-EPIC will be a non-editable secure PDF version.

2) In the first phase between Jan. 25 and Jan. 31, only new voters who have applied for their voter cards and have registered their mobile numbers with the Election Commission will be able to download their digital voter ID cards.

3) From next month, all voters will be able to download their digital copies, if their phone numbers are linked with the Election Commission.

4) Voters who do not have their phone numbers linked will have to get it done to avail the download feature.

5) Digital voter identity cards will be in PDF formats.

6) New voters will also get hard copies of their voter ID cards.

7) The digitisation is to ensure there is no delay in getting voter ID cards as the physical card takes time to print and reach the voter, and the idea is to provide faster delivery and easy accessibility to the document.

8) Digital voter ID cards can be stored on Digilocker.

9) The digital cards will carry a secured QR code.

10) The e-version of the voter ID card is being launched to mark the anniversary of the Election Commission.

National Voters Day celebrated

"While there are some who genuinely cast their vote, many people sit back and relax on voting day, and others are cajoled into voting for particular candidates. Hence, the importance of voting is lost," Judge Ramachandra D. Huddar regretted.

Deputy Commissioner Rohini Sindhuri said that apart from 26,782 new voters, the District Administration is looking at creating voter awareness. As part of the event, Additional DC B.S. Manjunatha Swamy administered oath to the new voters while the dignitaries symbolically distributed voter ID cards to a few new voters.

Prizes were distributed to the winners of various competitions held as part of Voters Day to students from High School, PUC and Degree. Coupons for purchasing books worth Rs. 1,500, Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 500 were distributed to winners of various categories.

R-Day Tractor Rally in Bengaluru tomorrow

Farmers denied permission to assemble at Maharaja's Grounds in Mysuru: DCP

Dr. Prakash Gowda

Mysuru, Jan. 25 (RK&DM)- With Tractor-borne farmers from Mysuru, Kodagu and Chamarajanagar districts set to assemble at Maharaja's College Grounds in city later today before travelling onwards to Bengaluru for taking part in the Farmers Republic Day Tractor Rally in the State capital tomorrow (Jan. 26), DCP Dr. A.N. Prakash Gowda said that the farmers have been denied permission to assemble at Maharaja's College Grounds.

Farmers from different parts of the State are taking out a Tractor Rally at Bengaluru tomorrow in support of the indefinite stir launched by Farmer Unions at New Delhi borders, seeking repeal of the Centre's three newly introduced Farm Laws.

The Farmer Unions, which have been staging protests and demonstrations since two months, will be taking out a R-Day Tractor Parade in the National Capital, in protest against the Centre's refusal to repeal the Farm Laws, which they claim are detrimental to the interests of the farming community.

Speaking at Bannimantap Parade Grounds, where the R-Day Parade rehearsal was held this morning, the DCP said that farmers arriving in city on tractors from neighbouring districts, will be stopped at check-posts, where they will be convinced to go back.

Pointing out that the farmers will be explained on the traffic bottlenecks and other public inconveniences that may be caused on the ever-busy Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway, he said that tractor-borne farmers will be persuaded to go back. He reiterated that farmers travelling in tractors will not be allowed to assemble at the ground, as a Republic Day security measure.

'KRRS to stage Statewide stir if tractors are stopped'

Badagalapura Nagendra

Mysuru, Jan. 25 (SBD&DM)- The Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha (KRRS) has warned that it will be forced to stage Statewide stir if Police stop tractor-borne farmers from taking part in the tractor parade to be taken out by farmers at Bengaluru tomorrow, marking R-Day.

Addressing a press meet at Jaladarshini Guest House here yesterday, KRRS President Badagalapura Nagendra said that KRRS, with support from other farmer and Labour Unions, has organised 'Jana Ganarajyotsava' tractor parade at Bengaluru tomorrow in support of the R-Day tractor parade being taken out by Farmer Unions at New Delhi tomorrow.

Pointing out that the Delhi Police have granted permission to take out tractor parade, he said that the KRRS has discussed the issue with Bengaluru Police Commissioner, who in turn has told the farmers not to bring tractors to the State capital.

Urging the Government to give permission for the tractor rally just like in New Delhi, he warned that Statewide protests will be launched if the Government and the Police try to stop tractors from entering Bengaluru or stop them midway on other Highways in the State.

Nagendra also cautioned that the farmers will be forced to resort to Highway Bandh if they are prevented from taking out tractor rally at Bengaluru tomorrow.

KRRS office-bearers Hoskote Basavaraj, P. Marankaiah, Mantagalli Mahesh and Gurumallappa were present during the press meet.

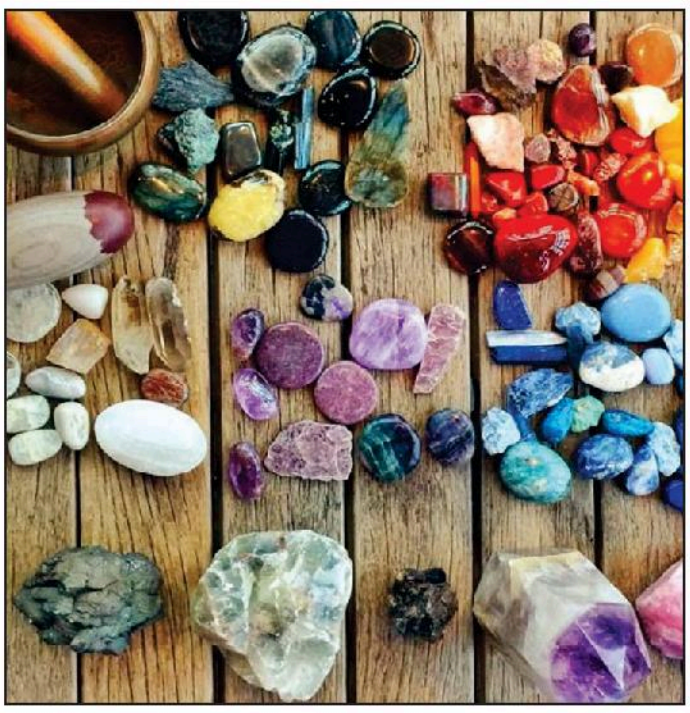
Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

By S.B.S.Surendran
Accredited Master Feng Shui Consultant

Heal your Soul



Everything that exists is permeated by a Universal energy that connects and nourishes all of life. This energy has been called by many different names, such as Chi and Prana (life breathe energy). When the flow of energy in the energy or aura field becomes blocked or fragmented, it prevents the living person from achieving harmony and the pure connection to a higher spiritual reality, which in turn prevents the full and healthy expression of the living potential. Energy field healing is the art of correcting defects in the energy field.

According to Feng Shui, our whole existence is determined by the five Elements present in our environment as well as our bodies. The five Elements are Earth, Water, Fire, Wood, and Metal and all have to be balanced equally in order for us to experience good health. The Earth element is present in the mind and acts as a grounding point for all experience. Creating the balance of elements and designing the environment in accordance with the principles of Feng Shui has a healing effect on the mind, body and soul.

Feng Shui perceived the body as a psychophysical system, consisting of a dynamic network of channels. These points are what we call the charkas. In oriental medicine, there is no such thing as an isolated illness. The mingling of both physical and psychological factors causes disturbance of the body's inner elemental harmony. What affects the mind, affects the body and vice-versa.

Adapting crystals for healing is effective in such a situation. Crystal represents Earth element and has the power to radiate the required energy field in and around the person. Crystal healing is the process of harmonising and integrating the changes into your whole being. You may notice physical and emotional changes as your physical, mental, emotional and spiritual bodies come into alignment. Some of these changes are caused by throwing off toxins and negative energies from the cleansing process which continues throughout the cycle of healing.

One could suspend crystals on the home or wear them as a necklace or bracelet. Your commitment to the crystal is part of the healing process. Let the crystal do the work for you. It is best not to wear more than two stones at any one time if you are new to crystal healing, as many people find the effects too distracting. The length of time to obtain the effects desired will depend on the quality of the crystal, size, colour, energy charge and location of wear, duration and the crystal's appropriateness to your healing. Give it time to work and you will gradually feel the change within you.

Rose quartz, amethyst, clear quartz, Himalayan quartz, lapis lazuli and citrine have great healing powers and they can be adapted based on specific needs of the individual.

NEP-2020: Navodaya Vidyalaya ties up with CIIL to train language teachers

Mysuru, Jan. 25- Moving a step ahead towards the successful implementation of NEP-2020 in terms of promotion of regional languages in schools, Navodaya Vidyalaya Samiti (NVS) has collaborated with National Testing Service-India (NTS-I) under Central Institute of Indian Languages (CIIL), Mysuru, for training NVS language teachers by offering a six-day online capacity building programme for each language.

NVS in collaboration with CIIL wishes to run this programme for 14 languages in total. In this connection, capacity-building programmes for 4 languages — Kannada, Marathi, Malayalam and Telugu — will be conducted in January and February 2021.

Prof. C. G. Venkatesha Murthy, Director, CIIL, said that CIIL is fully equipped to impart training and committed for the protection, preservation, and promotion of all Indian languages irrespective of their socio-linguistic status.

Vinayak Garg, Commissioner, NVS, opined that language teachers will prove to be the backbone in the successful implementation of NEP-2020.

He further said that such programmes along with their training modules shall be made available through Government portals such as DIKSHA, SWAYAM and NIOS for the larger benefit of the teaching community and public.

He emphasised that students must be able to inculcate LSRW skills in their own mother tongues and regional languages as native languages are very important for the better cognitive development of an individual.

He added that teaching of regional languages to non-native speakers is one of the very important pillars of 'Ek Bharat Shresht Bharat' as it will help strengthening unity and integrity in a country like India which has one of the highest linguistic diversity in the world.

Prof. P.R. Dharmesh Fernandez, Head, Centre for Testing and Evaluation, briefed the participants about the activities undertaken by CIIL and its 7 regional centres located across the country. He also gave a detailed description of CIIL's major schemes and projects such as NTS-I, NTM, BVP, LDCIL, SPPEL, and centres for studies on classical languages.

Expert's lectures and sessions in the programmes will be delivered by the renowned scholars across the country. About 350 TGTs will get trained with the state-of-the-art techniques, methods, tools and technologies in the area of language education, assessment and evaluation.

Dr. Pankaj Dwivedi, Officer In-charge of NTS-I, CIIL, is programme coordinator of these training programmes. Gyanendra Kumar and Gopal Krishna (NVS, Deputy Commissioners) and Mohammed Aziz (Navodaya Leadership Institute, Rangareddy) are supervising overall logistics of the programmes. Dr. Rakesh Cherucode (SRLC, CIIL) and Sujata Bhujang (WRLC, CIIL) are extending their academic support for the programme organised under the patronage of Director, CIIL Mysore and Commissioner, NVS (HQ).

Great British Mutiny

Mutiny spreads

The mutiny led by officers spread soon threatening the entire British position in India. In some of military stations rebellion against their Government in Madras and elsewhere resulted in widespread violence. There was suspension and removal of the rebellious men and officers from their posts, posting of new ones in their place, seeking expression of loyalty to the Government and awarding such men during this period. These actions led to further large-scale protests by the Army men at several places.

Ninety percent of the 1,300 officers commanding the native force refused to obey the orders of their superiors. Only 150 senior officers signed the test of loyalty Barlow had imposed. The rest locked up their colonies, broke open the treasury and took out thousands of pagodas to pay the native troops whom they had managed to keep under their control. For three months from beginning of July to the middle of September 1809, there was lawlessness in the whole of Southern India.

Revolt at Srirangapatna

The revolt by the troops stationed at Srirangapatna under the influence of Col. John Bell of the Company's Madras Artillery, who had been court-martialled in Bangalore, was of a serious nature. There was large scale violence and defiance of the Commandant of the Division. Rebellious attitude by European officers besides the natives was witnessed throughout the greater part of the Army.

Systematic aggression and insubordination were seen all over. Self-constituted committees usurped the military authority entrusted to the commanding officers and seized the garrison. Col. Bell, who was in command at Srirangapatna, defied the Commandant of the division, seized the treasure in the Fort.

During July-end, the Chitradurga troops seized the public treasury and deserted their posts. Two native battalions marched from Chitradurga to join the rebellious troops at Srirangapatna on August 6. En-route, the troops plundered villages.

Protecting property

Apprehending that the valuable property of the Maharaja and the Dewan, which "amounts to be a considerable sum", may become target of the rebels, guards were placed in the Fort over the personal property of Krishnaraja Wadiyar III and Dewan Poornaiah in Srirangapatna.

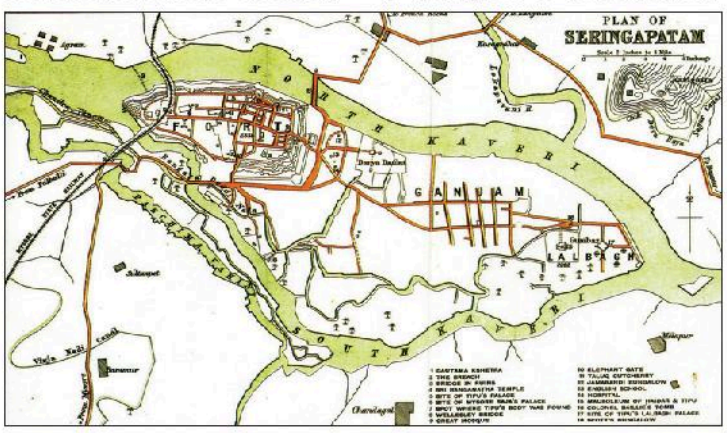
Meanwhile, the British army continued to put down the aggression. While on the march to Srirangapatna, two battalions of Chitradurga were attacked by a body of Mysurean Horse and the 25th Dragoons, which had been collected by the Resident to intercept the Chitradurga rebellions. In the operation, as many as 550 men were either killed, wounded or went missing. However, rest of the British and native officers and about 800 men made their way to Srirangapatna.

Resisting the mutiny

In the meantime, the Government had mobilised a large force to resist the mutineers. The mutineers opened fire upon the forces protecting the Fort and made a few sallies. Under the command of Lt. Col. Gibbs, a detachment from the British force defeated and dispersed the rebellious troops from entering into the Srirangapatna garrison.

The defeat of the rebelled troops and their surrender was achieved under the direction of Arthur Cole, Senior Assistant to the Resident, in Mysore on August 23. The Great White Mutiny came to an inglorious end, but saw several hundred sepoys lay dead in the ditches of the capital. The mutineers were court-martialled and dismissed from service.

Cole was rewarded with Acting Resident's post and subsequently the Resident's post because of "his prudence, wisdom and fearlessness, contribution very essentially to the restoration of order and the prevention of sanguinary extremities" during the mutiny of the British officers of the Madras army in 1809. It was in this mutiny De Havilland had taken part but subsequently apologised to be reinstated.



Plan of Srirangapatna.

WORD OF THE DAY

Mimesis

Pronunciation: muh-MEE-sis.
Meaning: Imitation, mimicry.
Origin: Mimesis is a term with an undeniably classical pedigree. Originally a Greek word, it has been used in aesthetic or artistic theory to refer to the attempt to imitate or reproduce reality since Plato and Aristotle. Mimesis is derived from the Greek verb mimeisthai, which means "to imitate" and which itself comes from mimos, meaning "mime." The English word mime also descends from mimos, as do mimic and mimicry. And what about mimeograph, the name of the duplicating machine that preceded the photocopier? We can't be absolutely certain what the folks at the A. B. Dick Company had in mind when they came up with Mimeograph (a trademark name that has since expired), but influence from mimos and its descendants certainly seems probable.
Example: "Art preserves, through mimesis, what no longer exists, offers a permanent record of impermanent reality—in this way, it can be not only a comfort but a remedy for grief." — Jackson Arn, The Forward (New York).

THE ODD WORD

Macropicide

Killer of kangaroos.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Make a clean breast of it

Meaning: To make a full disclosure; to confess.
Origin: The Oxford English Dictionary defines the noun breast as 'the two soft protuberances situated on the thorax in females'. The meaning used in 'make a clean breast of it' is an earlier and less literal one. The 'breast' there is the seat of the one's emotions and secrets; one's 'heart'. To disclose this openly was to clean one's heart of impurity. Any mention of breasts now is likely to be a reference to the 'soft protuberances' - we are more liable these days to 'get something off our chest'.
'Make a clean breast of it' is known since the 18th century and is cited by Cameron in The Scots Magazine, 1752:
"He pressed him... to make a clean breast, and tell him all."
The phrase parallels the later, 19th century American 'come clean'.
